

Help us Rally to Save the T. Thomas Fortune House National Historic Landmark

Dear Potential Fortune Patron:

We are a group of educators, architects, writers, attorneys, performance artists, and more who have come together to share the legacy of an outstanding figure in American history, for the benefit of all. We are working to save the T. Thomas Fortune House, a National Historic Landmark in Red Bank, New Jersey. The Thomas Fortune House is one of the most historically significant properties in the United States. It is located at 94 Drs. James Parker Blvd., on the west side of Red Bank, NJ. There are 57 National Historic Landmarks (NHL) in New Jersey, and only 2,500 in the entire USA.

The second empire style building is one of only two National Historic Landmarks in the state related to African American history. After Fortune's time, it came into the hands of the Vaccarelli brothers who opened a bakery on the premises and raised families there.

Timothy Thomas Fortune was a nationally known critic of the rise of Jim Crow and the failure of reconstruction in the wake of the Civil War. Fortune edited and published three Afro American (a term he popularized) newspapers with a national circulation during his career. Fortune was virtually unparalleled in his time for his agitation, education, and organization over a span of roughly 50 years (1880-1928). Fortune organized the first convention of the Afro-American League, considered to be a precursor to the NAACP. At his passing, he was eulogized as the Dean of Black Journalism.

His work remains relevant today:

The T. Thomas Fortune House Preservation Project, with the sponsorship of the Red Bank Men's Club Foundation and the leadership of the National Landmarks Alliance and Garden State Legacy, wishes to acquire the property, then stabilize and secure the house so that it can be restored and developed into a cultural center. Programming at the center is being planned with an eye to the needs of, and with significant input from, surrounding communities. Along with educational programming, including on other Red Bank luminaries such as Count Basie and the Drs. James Parker, potential elements include music, arts and personal financial management classes, etc

Rally with us to Save the House

We are seeking funds to hold a Spring Symposium that includes scholars in Fortune's fields of journalism and civil rights who will speak and discuss the significance of Fortune in American History and the importance of preserving his legacy at a local venue

Our costs include the space rental, promotional materials, and lunch for participants, as well as travel and lodging for the scholars traveling long-distance. Donations are tax-deductible to the extent allowed by law through the
